Department of English

Preamble:

The NEP 2020, with its objective of giving a new shape and dimension to the existing educational scenario in the country by incorporating indigenous, national and international features, paints a vibrant vision for higher education. With a focus on reducing the number of dropouts, and increasing employability and diverse skills, the NEP 2020 envisions a curriculum that is conducive to all types of learners. Thus, taking into account the various requirements, and the need for interdisciplinary learning, the Faculty Board of Studies of English, Dept of English has designed the present Post Graduate Programme in English to meet the set objectives as mentioned in the NEP 2020.

English Studies is taking on an increasingly important role against the backdrop of the current global scenario. With the rise of Artificial Intelligence and a shift towards dependence on it, the ever-important questions of humanity, creativity, and critical enquiry have been brought to the forefront once again. Thus, the Post Graduate programme in English, 2025, has been designed with the aim to provide the students with both hard and soft skills to negotiate the ever-changing environment around them. While Literary studies will continue to function as the core component of the syllabus, it also includes the mandate of the National Education Policy 2020, advocating increasing vocationalisation of curricula and, accordingly, several skill-based courses have been designed to lend the learners a competitive edge when it comes to selection for employment and further research positions.

Introduction:

The Post Graduate Programme in English syllabus offers a plethora of intensive courses with Major and Research components. In keeping with the NEP 2020 mandate for encouraging interdisciplinary learning, the courses have been designed taking into account the relevance of several other fields to English Studies. The facility for choosing from various models and the option of an early exit after two semesters will provide the students with the necessary space to align their learning experiences.

The core elements of English Literary Studies have been retained over the first two semesters, in order to ensure that the learners acquire a comprehensive knowledge of the socio-political, aesthetic, historical and literary dimensions of literature from across the world. This has been augmented by the introduction of courses on literary theory and criticism, and other courses leaning on interdisciplinarity, to encourage the learners to critically engage with literary studies, and other aesthetic and social discourse around them. The introduction of research elements in two of the three models provided to the students offers an opportunity to put their learned skills to practice, and to contribute to knowledge production and critical discourse in their respective field of studies, and the larger society beyond that.

Programme Educational Objectives (PEOs):

The objectives of the M.A. in English Programme are as follows:

PEO-1: To develop a deeper and wider understanding of literatures in English and other languages from around the world

PEO-2: To develop literary sensibilities and different aesthetic forms in the study of literature

PEO-3: To equip the students with a broad understanding of critical social and aesthetic theory and their application to the analysis of literature

PEO-4: To facilitate the development of necessary creative, analytic, and technical skills in the students to equip them for a career in diverse fields related to language, literature, culture, and beyond.

Programme Outcomes (POs):

In keeping with the objectives of the course, the following are the areas in which the students will equip themselves:

PO1: Foundational Knowledge

They will develop a good grasp on the foundational knowledge of literature from around the world, with a focus on the technicalities of literary forms and sensibilities, alongside an understanding of Indian literature and its various forms and contexts.
